You will then be taken to the submission page for the award. Complete the two forms (tasks) at the top of the screen: The “Main Nominee Information” form, followed by the submission form for the award (this is the form with the name of the award). You must complete the “Main Nominee Information” form before filling out the submission form for the award. To start filling out the form, either click the name of the form or the start button that corresponds to the form.

After completing these two forms, you can upload entries not available online, transcripts for radio and tv stories or translations for non-English stories at the bottom of the page. Scroll down past the award information text to find this task: “Upload entries not available online, transcripts (for radio and tv) or translations (for non-English stories)”. After uploading your files, click the “Back to Submission” button to return to the award submission page and complete your submission. If you do not have any items to upload, you can skip this step.

... recognition of a series may require at the time of nomination to being part of the series, the series is judged as one entry. Alternatively, coverage of an ongoing activity, such as a scientific society meeting or a natural event, can be regarded as a series. However, no more than three segments of any series may be submitted for judging.

- For most submissions, AGU will need a URL web address for the entry, which you can enter into the nomination form. However, for two types of entries (broadcast/multimedia and non-English), you will also need to submit additional documents, which you can upload at the bottom of this page:

- BROADCAST/MULTIMEDIA REPORT: If your entry is a broadcast or multimedia report (i.e., video or audio), please be certain to upload a written transcript, in the form of a PDF or Word document, for the video or audio portions.
- NON-ENGLISH REPORT: If your entry is in a language other than English, please be certain to upload a written translation, in the form of a PDF or Word document.

- Most nominations for the Perlman award are submitted by the author(s) of the entry. However, if you are submitting a nomination, but are not the nominee, please be certain to fill out the lower portion of the online nomination form with information about yourself. AGU will contact the nominee(s) to ask if the nomination should move forward and to request any additional materials that may be needed.
